Over the next century, the world will see changes we can't even imagine. Advances in technology, shifts in demographics, and developments in global politics will all play a part in dramatically transforming our future. But this book is not about predicting the future-it's about understanding the principles that will shape it. Scores of youth-oriented church-planting movements have come and gone quickly over the last century, many of them with the potential to literally change the world for Christ. Unfortunately, most didn't survive because they were unable to maintain what made them so effective in their first twenty years. The same mission, values, and culture that inspire movements must also sustain them. Simple to say. Not so easy to do. 100 Years From Now explores the importance of understanding mission, values, and culture in order to grow and sustain a movement for generations. 100 Years from Now invites a truly global conversation on what the Spirit is saying to the churches about God's mission for every nation. -Dr. Timoteo Gener, President and Professor of Theology, Asian Theological Seminary

Pearls of wisdom from a real leader

By Ray and Satomi Mercer

The latest book from Steve Murrell, - [...] - founding pastor of Victory Churches in the Philippines and president of Every Nation Churches worldwide. The book begins with a story from Pastor Steve's youth, where he recalls his high school relay team coming in first place only to be disqualified because they forgot the baton. Based on the premise that it doesn't matter how well we do if we forget to pass the baton he goes on to explain the importance of passing the "baton" of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the next generation. The stories in this book are based on Steve's personal experience as a cross-cultural missionary and church planter as well as his current role as leader of an international movement of churches.

100 Years From Now: Sustaining a Movement for Generations is definitely a manifesto for the Every Nation movement in particular, but it is much more. The principals in this book are timeless and would benefit any Christian who is serious about "passing the baton" and obeying the Great Commission of Christ. Steve Murrell's writing style is enjoyable and very easy to read. I would recommend this book to all my friends!

Made me question myself too: 100 years from now ...

By Nelfa

Made me question myself too: 100 years from now; what have I left behind, as an individual, as a minister (if I may say) of the Gospel, as a parent, as a wife, as a friend? If I live 100 years from now, who have I become in my son and his children and his children's children's eyes? Am I a part to sustain the movement for generations? It can be a tool for devotions too.

a great fire starter!

By Michael Watkins

This great book helped me rekindle my fire. Hearing why others have gone and obeyed reminded me why we went and encouraged me to go again. This book also served as a great daily devotional, and I recommend it to all who would heed the Great Commission.
