Sendak Illustrations and the Kid Wins

By Mamazabakaka

This book scored a very big hit with my 5-year-old grandson and both of his parents. The kid is not as powerless as he thought, even though he's just a kid, and he gets to win. For kids who often feel like they don't have anything to say about their lives and the grownups have all the power, this is a charming, happy story. I love the illustrations, as well. My daughter and son-in-law are both working artists and Maurice Sendak is a family favorite.

The End of Rabbit Pies and Sheer Green Magic

By Pippin O' Rohan

If ever you are in need of a smile, this short children's book by Robert Graves and wonderful illustrations by Maurice Sendak will do the trick. The text is cleverly simplistic and elegant, and the amusing pictures tell it all. When Jack, an unhappy orphaned boy left in the custody of a rather dim aunt and uncle, discovers a large dusty book in the attic, he is able to redress the situation on the home front as well as curing the family dog of a dubious habit by means of a few wise and funny wishes. The last one he makes is bound to make everybody laugh with appreciation. An original and great book for people of all ages who want to grow up to be a kid.

I finally found it listed in amazon

By Korinthos Kackis

I am 45 and I got this book (in german: das grüne Buch) as a gift when I was seven. I never forgot it. Once, when I was in 3rd grade, I took it to school and our (mathematics) teacher read it out loud during class. The teacher himself was touched by the book and came to me, and assured that it was a very fine book.

I appreciate both artists, Graves and Sendak.
